Question: I have at-home COVID-19 tests on my shelf that have now passed their expiration date. Can I still use them?

Answer: Maybe! Several manufacturers extended the shelf life of at-home tests by up to 9 months including the iHealth antigen tests that were distributed by the government. To find out if your at-home test now has an extended shelf-life, contact the manufacturer listed on the package.

Missing and Murdered Indigenous Persons Awareness Day

Monica's Minute

Today, thousands of unsolved cases of missing and murdered Native Americans continue to cry out for justice and healing. On Missing and Murdered Indigenous Persons Awareness Day, we remember the Indigenous people who we have lost to murder and those who remain missing.

Across the nation, we are called upon to wear red to acknowledge thousands of young women and girls who go missing each year without so much as a search party.

May 5th, 2021 was an important day, as President Joe Biden declared this the day that Missing and Murdered Indigenous people would be recognized and remembered.

Events were held across Indian Country to raise awareness of the day and the issue. This year, Indian Country is keeping the fire burning by hosting more events across Indian Country, all this week.

"Too many of our people are missing or murdered."
